Aim and Scope

The world of Internet is a multi-faceted one. Each and every field of Internet is witnessing a tremendous growth in the present century. But still, researchers have to wait for a long time to publish their research articles in reputed journals. To tide over this disadvantage, we have launched this online research journal.

SUBJECTS AREA

All Fields Related to Science

Highlights of Our Journal

- Articles will be published in the website and also in the print version at the same time.
- DOI Number for all the articles
- Authors can view their accepted articles in the website.
- Most read and most downloaded articles may be viewed by Authors

From the Editor's Desk

The world of Internet is a multi-faceted one. Each and every field of Internet is witnessing a tremendous growth in the present century. But still, researchers have to wait for a long time to publish their research articles in reputed journals. To tide over this disadvantage, we have launched this research journal titled "Knowledge of Research (KOR)". We publish experimental, theoretical and applied research papers related to all branches of Science. This issue includes original articles written by the researchers and scientist working in different geographical parts of the world. KOR publishes both online and print version simultaneously. We invite all researchers, chemist and scientist who want to publish their research works to send us their manuscripts, original or review, via email submission or by using online submission system. All the manuscripts submitted to our KOR are subjected to peer-review process
